“I was very impressed with PLI throughout the entire process. The material was focused on the right content and my confidence grew after every lecture and corresponding question set. Patware was really the icing on the cake. All of the practice questions were spot on so that the actual exam felt no different than what I had been doing since day one.”
– Matthew Emch, The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law; passed the Exam in April 2017

“Thank you very much for providing an excellent study material. I could not pass without it. I first purchased two study materials from another company ($1000 in total) because they were much cheaper, but not effective at all, I wasted my money. The PLI study material allows you to pass the exam, especially for those who do not know anything about the patent law yet. So it is better for you to spend a little more money!”
– Kaori Watanabe, University of Southern California, Biological Science; passed the Exam in April 2017

“PLI was a big help, the resources from the online course provided me with everything I needed to be prepared to take the exam. PLI has all of the updated material, which was absolutely necessary to pass the exam in early 2017. I would highly recommend anyone who wants to pass the exam to study the PLI course exactly as outlined so that the exam is a breeze like it was for me!”
– Michael Feirstein, UCLA School of Law; passed the Exam in February 2017

EXAM PREPARATION CALENDAR

The one-day Exam can be scheduled more or less at your convenience. It’s finding the right time to study for it that should be your primary focus.

STEP 1. You’re going to need 150-200 hours (we’d suggest one month of full-time study, or two months of part-time study) to prepare for the Exam. Pull out your calendar and see where you can find that month or two in the coming year.

STEP 3. Look to see whether one of our live courses falls within your projected study time. If not, or if you just prefer a homestudy course, plan to register for the online homestudy course. Order your preferred course at least a week before your projected study time starts, and start to study as soon as it arrives (even if you’re coming to a live course later).

OR . . . If you feel that a live course is essential, plan your Exam date by figuring how long it will take you to fit in another 100 hours of preparation after the last day of your preferred live course.

STEP 4. Send off your PTO Exam application about four weeks before you finish your preparation.

STEP 5. Start planning your celebration for passing the Exam!
