... But labels and assumptions in the area of insurance protections for cyber claims are not always helpful. Many cyber claims can be covered both under dedicated cyber forms and under more conventional business insurance policies that have been purchased for decades. How the coverages take form depends on the kind of policy it is in which the cyber coverage is found. For example, some companies purchase cyber policies that provide only cyber-related coverage. Other companies that routinely provide services can purchase their cyber...
